SWAY

SYNOPSIS

During the summer of 1971, four college friends devise a plan to smuggle a shipment of marijuana from Jamaica to New England, using a boat called "Sway" that belongs to one of the friends' uncles in Jamaica.

Along their journey, they encounter a retired pirate, his on-and-off lover, and an heiress. They experience falling in and out of love, being pursued by the police, deceived by locals, and face numerous setbacks in their attempts to deliver the cargo. The final scene shows the Sway fully loaded and heading back to the United States.

However, a steering issue forces them toward Cuba, and they must return to Jamaica. They end up in the middle of the Miami to Montego Bay regatta, where a helicopter flies overhead and a gunship with flashing lights appears on the horizon. They quickly toss the cargo overboard. The gunship pulls alongside, and the governor boards the Sway to award them the Pineapple Cup for winning the regatta.

15 Great Low Budget Movies That Made a Killing!

The Blair Witch Project (1999)

Budget: $35,000
Worldwide Gross: $248,300,000

When a movie is made for relatively very little money and through marketing, buzz, or just being a great movie, makes a killing at the box office. When movies with budgets of nine figures bomb and cost studios money, it's pretty cool to see low budget films make a return of literally over 1000%. Take a look at 15 low budget movies that turned out to be – from a commercial standpoint – phenomenal investments.

Mad Max (1979)

Budget: $200,000
Worldwide Gross: $99,750,000

Super Size Me (2004)

Budget: $65,000
Worldwide Gross: $29,500,000

My Big Fat Greek Wedding (2002)

Budget: $5,000,000
Worldwide Gross: $368,000,000

Rocky (1976)

Budget: $1,000,000
Worldwide Gross: $225,000,000

American Graffiti (1973)

Budget: $777,000
Worldwide Gross: $140,000,000

Once (2007)

Budget: $150,000
Worldwide Gross: $19,000,000

Night of the Living Dead (1968)

Budget: $114,000
Worldwide Gross: $30,000,000

Friday the 13th (1980)

Worldwide Gross: $565,000

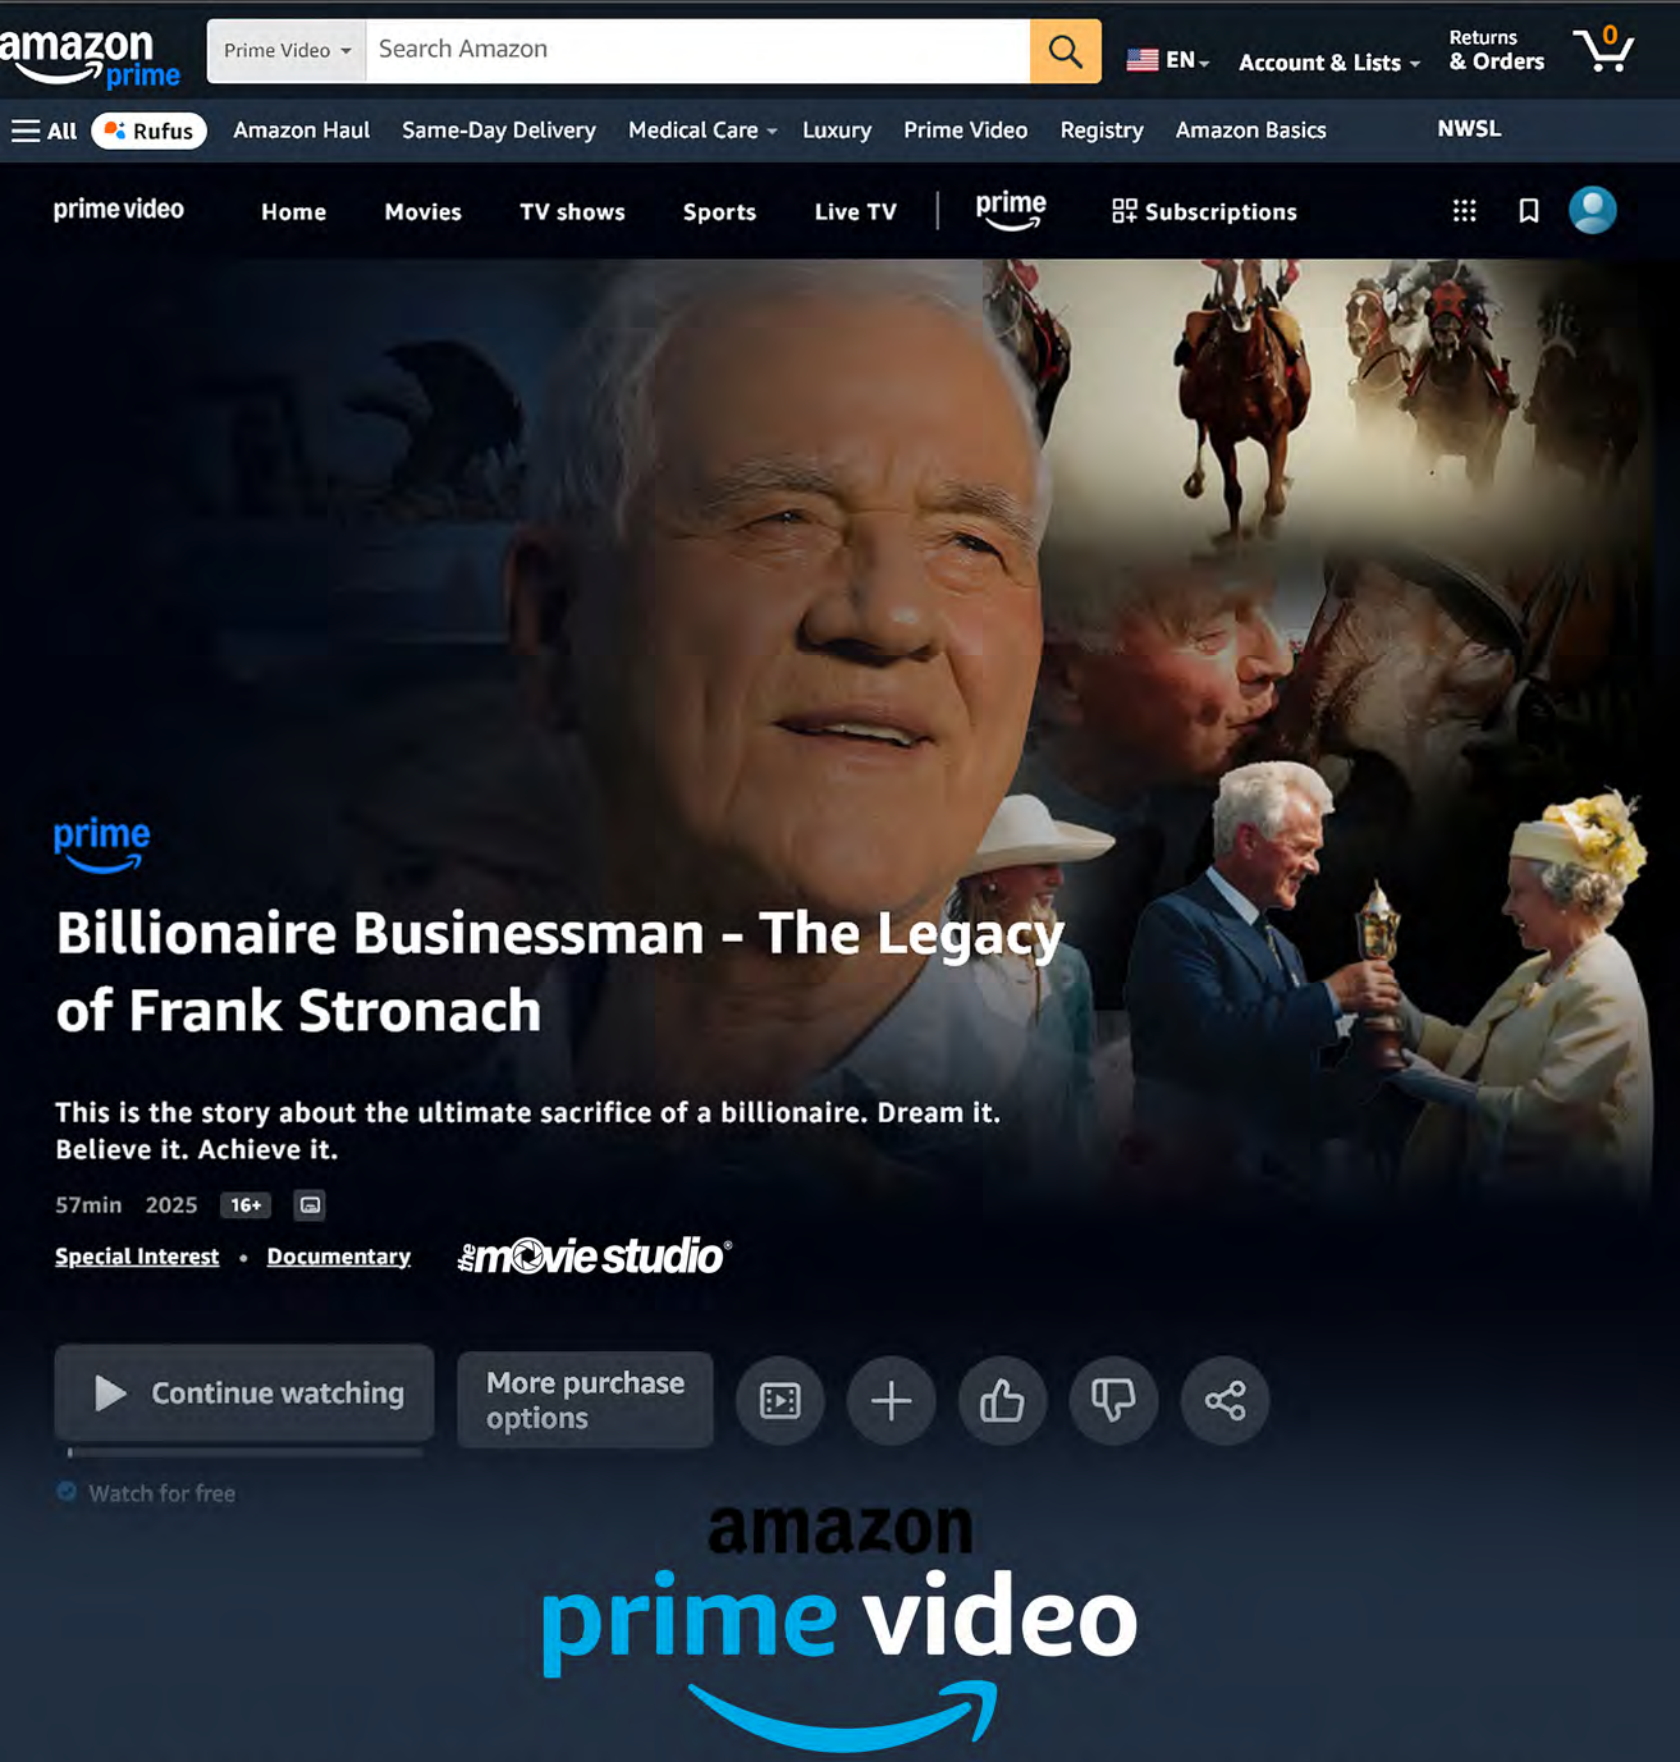

As of Q1 2024, Tubi reached . While this figure relates to the percentage of households that have used the streaming service, Tubi has also reported its monthly active user (MAU) numbers, which are significantly higher. In June 2025, Tubi achieved 100 million monthly active users. This indicates a substantial growth from the 78 million MAUs reported in 2024.

It's important to note the difference between household reach and monthly active users. Household reach indicates the percentage of homes where at least one person uses the service, while monthly active users represents the total number of unique individuals engaging with the platform within a month, including potential duplication across devices and within households.

This growth in both household reach and monthly active users demonstrates Tubi's increasing popularity as a streaming service.

amazon prime video

Amazon does not release public U.S. home data for its Prime streaming service, but research firms estimate it has a significant presence.

In late 2023, Parks Associates reported Prime Video had over 77 million domestic subscribers, a figure that could represent a substantial portion of U.S. homes with streaming services. Another source claims Amazon has around 180 million U.S. Prime members, though this figure lacks official confirmation from Amazon.

VENTURES CAPITAL PARTNERS & ASSOCIATES

American Film Market: Key statistics and information (as of August 22, 2025)

AFM®

The American Film Market (AFM) is a major annual event for the international film industry, focusing on film acquisition, development, and networking. Unlike film festivals, AFM is primarily a marketplace where production and distribution deals are made.

2024 AFM (held in Las Vegas)

Attendance: 5,522 attendees from 87 countries.

Exhibitors: 286 registered companies from 34 countries, according to the American Film Market.

Buyers: Nearly 500 buying companies from 63 countries were present, with the majority sending multiple representatives.

Projected Sales: AFM 2024 was expected to generate over $1 billion in sales, says the Las Vegas Review-Journal.

FESTIVAL DE CANNES

The Cannes Film Market is the world's largest film market, held annually in May alongside the Cannes Film Festival. It serves as a global hub for film professionals, offering networking, deal-making, project showcases, and thousands of screenings of films in development and finished features. The market is a crucial platform for securing financing, distribution, and collaboration.

tiff. toronto international film festival

TIFF, founded in 1976, has grown to become one of the largest and most prestigious publicly attended film festivals globally. It attracts hundreds of thousands of attendees and generates substantial economic activity for Toronto and Ontario.

It screens 300 to 400 films from around the globe and has an average attendance of more than 250,000. The festival is particularly known as a platform for promoting and popularizing new films.

LIONSGATE BREWING MICRO-BUDGET MOVIE SLATE

Lionsgate set the first three films under a new initiative to generate films with budgets under $2 million. The goal for the micro-budget venture is to generate up to 10 films per year, according to Joe Drake, Lionsgate's Motion Picture Group president.

THE FIRST THREE FILMS: ARE:

GAY DUDE

A Superbad-style coming of age raunchy comedy. Two best friends vow to lose their virginity before graduating high school. Then one confesses he's gay. Script's by Parks and Recreation writer Alan Yang, and it made The Black List. Laurence Mark produces with Jai Stefan.

RAPTUREPALOOZA

Starring Craig Robinson as the Anti-Christ. Chris Matheson wrote the script and Paul Middleditch will direct. Mosaic and Ed Solomon are producing, with production to begin in the spring.

6 MIRANDA DRIVE

A supernatural thriller from Wolf Creek writer/director Greg Mclean. Purported to be fact-based, the tale focuses on a family that unwittingly brings a supernatural force home with them from vacation. The evil presence feeds off their fears and secrets. Mosaic is producing with Mclean.

Lionsgate joins a growing interest in micro-budget films. It started with sleeper hits like Paranormal Activity, and there are a number of "found footage"-driven films forthcoming, including the Timur Bekmambetov-produced Apollo I 8 from The Weinstein Company. These are low risk propositions. They have a genre focus and not built on stars, providing low risk and breakout potential.

"Microbudget films involved minimal overhead and very little risk, but a potentially high reward," Drake said in a statement. "This initiative allows us to add another layer to our slate of movies that work both financially and creatively." Lionsgate's Matt Kaplan will oversee the small productions.

A Worldwide Sales Agency

- The Movie Studio has extensive relationships with content providers -studios, producers, libraries - with a track record that will continuously draw new business opportunities.
- The Movie Studio General Partner has strong relationships with distributors worldwide, having previously sold hundreds of films to over 80 countries.

Image Map Of Countries Of Film Distribution

TMS Film Distribution & North America

The Movie Studio (MVES) business operates in the high risk and potentially highly profitable segment of the entertainment industry that connects independent filmmakers and distribution outlets.

- Sales & Marketing Agency - TMS's principal activities will be based around the licensing of partially or fully completed films made by independent filmmakers to entertainment distributions. TMS recoups expenses and earns commissions from the first dollar collected under the licensing deals it generates. Unlike film producers who make large investments in the production of their films (with little guarantee of return), TMS is able to generate its revenue from these films with minimal investment and risk.

- North American Distribution - TMS feels it is critical to not be identified as just another foreign sales agency, since we plan to sell domestic rights for our films whenever possible. Additionally, having an aggregator for domestic outlets can make the difference in winning.
